

Breakfast SIG

Understanding Your Junior Partner, Medical Students and Your Children: Workstyles and Generational Differences

Thursday, March 22, 2007
Lark Room, 6:30am – 7:45am
Walt Disney Swan

Description

Value systems, work ethics and expectations can clash when younger physicians join a practice headed up by “mature” doctors.

This session is an open forum to learn what makes each group tick, and to discuss this increasingly critical management issue—how to create an environment where different generations can work together effectively.

Moderator: JoAnn Lohr, MD, Surgical Specialists, Cincinnati, OH

6:30A – 6:45AM Welcome & Introduction

6:45A – 7:15AM Teresa G. Odle, Invited Speaker Presentation

Teresa G. Odle is a nationally published medical and medical practice writer, and editor living in Albuquerque, NM. She has worked in health care communication for more than 16 years and is a member of the American Medical Writers Association. In addition to continuing education manuscripts, Ms. Odle has written and edited medical essays for consumers and medical professionals and has edited a national newsletter on medical practice management. She is a former business development director for a large radiology practice and the recipient of health care writing awards.

7:15A – 7:45AM Discussion

7:45AM Adjourn